Liquid Armour at a glance

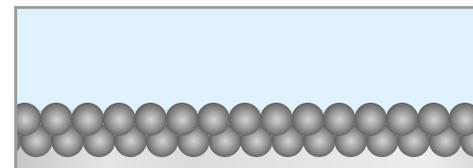

External Paintwork Protection

Liquid Armour paintwork protection has its origins in the aerospace industry. When originally developed the product was used to protect Concorde and the Boeing 747. Liquid Armour forms an almost impenetrable barrier for your vehicle providing powerful protection for your paintwork.

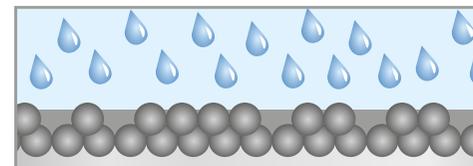

Steps to provide the ultimate protection:

Stage 1: Professional preparation deep cleans the 'pores' of the vehicle's paint finish.

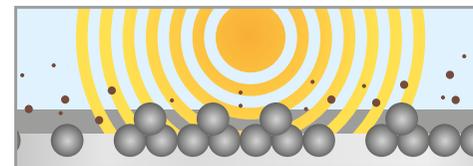

Stage 2: A fluoro-polymer based sealant bonds through into the clear coat of paintwork. Once cured it is virtually impossible to remove this coat without professional intervention. This gives a durable, glass-like transparent protective layer, providing protection from weather induced fading, acid rain damage, oxidization and loss of gloss.
